Made by Two Brothers Upon a Monroe Both Arrested and Held in $500 Bail

Monroe street, famous already for its fights, was the scene yesterday of something too one sided and too serious to be alluded to merely as a fight. About a week or ten days ago Charles Winston, formerly a hotel clerk, and Henry Weaver, a gambler, had a difficulty in the Peabody Hotel billiard-room about a debt of $30. Confliction statements are made regarding Unfortunately the rain yesterday prevented the races, but the track is so well drained that it will be in good shape this afternoon, provided there is not another tooking rain. The races announced for yesterday will be run to day if it is clear, which means that nothing but an aftiscious and, soaking shower will prevent the carrying out of the programme.

A large number of lorses and sporting men arrived Sunday, others came in yesterday, and the hotels last night were well filled. The crowd at the Peabody was a very large one, and a great deal of interest seemed to be taken in the selling of austion pools on to-day's events. The entries and sales were as follows.

Several of the members of the court who understood the whole matter warmly indorsed the Building Committee, and declared that it was useless to appoint a committee, as the court and the public knew the gentlemen in charge of building were entitled to praise alone.

It is probable however, that other members of the committee will insist upon a pers of the committee will insist upon a committee and a report to spread on the
